

InBio Allergen Research

Location: Charlottesville, VA
Market Sector: Corporate
Size: 12,000
Year Completed: 2015

On Harris St, just down from its original location in Charlottesville, VA, InBio has renovated a 12,000 SF suite to serve as their new corporate headquarters.

InBio's new headquarters provides a refreshing new experience for staff with administrative, lab, and break spaces.

DRIVERS

As an international company recognized as the world leader in the assessment of environmental exposure to allergens, it was important to not only incorporate a large research lab and administrative suite, but also a large break room space that could act as the heart of the office, fostering communication and an opportunity to decompress throughout the day.

APPROACH

In opening the large folding glass doors to the adjacent conference room, a full kitchen and cafe flex into an even larger event space to accommodate the entire staff during company-wide video conference calls. InBio approaches all their design decisions with a very employee centric attitude, resulting in a space that provides great natural light and high ceilings, playful pops of color, curated art displays that rotate regularly, and designated zones for quiet work and collaboration.
